

Wakabadai Station-Kodara-Wakabadai Park Course

Highlight | Koshoji Temple

©K.Okazawa・JET INoue

©Google

Route Description

- 📍 Wakabadai Station
- 🌳 Fureai-no-Mori
- 🏠 Kosen Basan Hokora
- 🌳 Otsuka Farm
- 🏯 Tenman-jinja Shrine
- 🏯 Koshoji Temple
- 🏠 Sakahama Clinic
- 🌳 Kasayato Water Park Water Mill
- 🎾 Wakabadai Tennis Court
- 📍 Wakabadai Station

🕒 Time allowed	around 1 h 30 min.
📏 Distance	around 5.8 km
🔥 Calorie consumption	around 270 kcal
👣 Number of steps	around 8290 steps

* These are estimates given for a person, weight 60kg, moving at 4km per hour, walking 10 min.=30kcal, one step=70cm. Besides, the time allowed is the actual time when we walked the course.

Tokyo Metropolitan Government Health Promoting character KENKOUDESUKA-MAN

Recommended Site

Icons: 🏯 Shrines and Temples 🌳 Park 🏠 Other

🏯 Koshoji Temple

This is a branch temple of Hase-dera Temple in Nara Prefecture that belongs to the Shingi Shingon Sect. Koshoji Temple was established by Chinkai in 1368. The temple houses a standing statue of Kanzeon Bosatsu (a designated cultural asset of Tokyo), a statue of the reclining Buddha, etc.

🏠 Otsuka Farm

In the center of Kodara-dori street is Otsuka Farm, which has been operating since 1938. There is a total of about 50 head of dairy cow and beef cattle, along with various animals such as sheep, boars, silky fowl, and rabbits. It is like a small zoo. There is also a farm for picking blueberries in summer (from early July to around the end of August).

🏯 Tenman-jinja Shrine

It is recorded in "Jinja Meisaicho (Registry of shrines)" that the shrine was established in 1694 by a jito (lord of a manor) named Shigemasa Denzaemon Amano. On the back of the sitting statue of goshintai (object of worship), the words "Goshintai was dedicated by Denzaemon Amano on February 29, 1694" are written in Indian ink, confirming the record of the registry. In 1936, Tobu-Ueno-sha Shrine and Inari-sha Shrine, Oheya-myojin Shrine, Dogaya-to-Suwa-sha Shrine, and Kasayato-shinmeisha Shrine were enshrined together.